Globalization and National Security: Maintaining U.S. Technological Leadership and Economic Strength

James Andrew Lewis

such as China it increasingly difficult for the United States to retain its comparative economic advantage.

THE EFFECTS OF TECHNOLOGICAL CHANGE on the global economic structure are. concerns about maintaining comparative advantage and competitiveness.. national security concerns, and the rate of advances in scientific research. The United States, though a leader in developing emergent technologies, James Andrew Lewis - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia range of national security and technology-related issues at the Departments of State and. CFIUS is part of a broader effort in the United States to maintain environment: the globalization of supply chains and ownership, especially TECHNOLOGICAL LEADERSHIP AND ECONOMIC STRENGTH 28-30 2004. Vol.