Who Makes Public Policy: The Struggle For Control Between Congress And The Executive

Robert S Gilmour Alexis A Halley Diana Evans

Company Men: White-Collar Life and Corporate Cultures in Los. - Google Books Result
The Struggle for Control between Congress and the Executive. In the United States, the struggle between the executive and legislative branches of the federal government for the implementation and refinement of public policy. The struggle over the executive's power to control foreign policy, arms sales to foreign countries in the Arms Export Control Act, and the budgetary process is an example.

Managing for Results 2002 - Google Books Result
The struggle between Congress and the Executive. The struggle for control of policy and program development, Robert S. Gilmour and Alexis A. Halley-- Who makes public policy?: the struggle for control between Congress and the Executive. View larger image

Why Congress Needs a New Budget Process - Heritage Foundation

The Struggle for Control Between Congress and the Executive. The struggle for control between Congress and the Executive. View larger image

Public Administration and Law - Google Books Result
Who Makes Public Policy?: The Struggle for Control Between Congress and the Executive.

Managing for Results 2002 - Google Books Result

Friends and Foes: How Congress and the President Really Make. - Google Books Result

The President or the executive branch can make foreign policy. The Constitution divides the foreign policy powers between the President and Congress but not in Second, the complex process of determining foreign policy makes it...